Street Marks Time As Country Forges Ahead Of Stocks and Bonds on Washington Stock Exchange for

while Wall Street has been inclined to mark time during the past week, dividing it, attention between the Chicago conventions and the recent news of the war, the industries of the country have continued to forge ahead at high speed, with no indication of a material check in the increase in earnings in practically all the larger industries.

Clearings through the banks during the week in the principal cities in the United States were again in a very satisfactory volume, amounting to $4.

22.496.305, or an increase of 65 per cent as compared with the same week last pear, according to Dun's Review.

The railroads continue to enjoy phenomenal prosperity, and their published reports of increased earnings indicate that the various big systems are doing capacity business.

Clearings through the banks during the week in the principal cities in the United States were again in a very satisfactory volume, amounting to $4,-$26,866.806, or an increase of 66 per cent as compared with the same week last year, according to Dun's Review. The railroads continue to enjoy phenomenal prosperity, and their published reports of increased earnings indicate that the various big systems are doing capacity business. According to figures published by the Wall Street Journal, the gross earnings of twenty-three roads, operating in the United States, for the third week in May was $7,370,191 as compared with $6,216,407 in 1915. This shows an increase of 18.56 per cent, which compares with a decrease of 5.28 per cent for the corresponding week of 1915, and a decrease of 6.38 per cent for 1914.

Dry Goods Trade Strong.

Marshall Field & Co. in their weekly review of the dry goods trade, says: "Current wholesale distribution of dry goods is in equal volume to that of the cor-rent wholesale distribution of dry goods is in equal volume to that of the corresponding period of a year ago, notwithstandine the fact that we did not hold our semi-annual, pre-inventory sale, which event occurred during this week a year ago. Road sales for both immediate and future delivery are well shead of the same week last year. Customers have been in the market for fewer numbers, but the decrease is accounted for by the pre-inventory sale of last year, which always attracts an unusually large number of merchants." Cotton goods markets are marking time, what price changes there are being upward. The principal advance for the week was made by some lines of percales, which gained 4 cent a yard. On the whole the situation is quiet, but firm. Mills are well sold up, and retailers are doing a satisfactory trade, so that there seems little reason to anticipate a setback.

According to the Department of Agriculture crop conditions on Jnue 1 indicated smaller production of small grain crops than last year, but not materially different from the average production of the preceding five years, taking the country as a whole. Hay and pasture conditions are said to be better than average. Fruit crops are good taken as a whole. The wheat crop is considerably below last year's, but there is a surplus of 200,000,000 bushels left over from last year, so there should be no scarcity, and the situation is such as to indicate good prices for growers. The report of the United States foreign trade for April is most favorable. Imports were valued at $217,700,000, of $7,000,000 in excess of the same month a year ago, while exports were $39,-800,000, or $105,000,000 more than a year ago. The excess of exports over imports was $182,000,000, compared with $132,000,000 in 1915. This is the season when there is usually a decline in exports of grains, and the present increase is doubtless largely due to munition shipments.

Financial Situation Normal.

"There is nothing in the financial situation to warrant either pronounced optimism or undue caution," says Hen-ry Clews & Co. in their weekly finan-cial review. "Pavorable conditions ap-pear to have been well discounted and unfavorable conditions are difficult to discover.

"Business in this country is still very active in spite of the slowing down which has occurred in some lines, and which was certainly desirable if unwholesome excesses were to be avoided. The steel trade seems to have reached the high point for a period at least, and the same is true of some other industries.

the high point for a period at least, and the same is true of some other industries.

"The building trade, on the other hand, shows signs of recovery, and would prosper more freely if materials were shaded somewhat from present high prices. Attention this week has been largely diverted by the automobile merger and the attendant speculation, which induced some discrimination in conservative banking circles. A temporary advance in call money also excited some comment."

The Iron Age says. "The tendency of prices for early delivery to approach those for forward delivery is more marked in the heavier finished linesparticularly in bars and structural shapes, and to a less degree in plates. In that feature of the market close observers are confirmed in the judgment recently passed that in prices the crest of the wave has been seen. The producers whose policy has been to cater to high-priced spot business find now and then that they have space, and in such a case the mill makes the price, whereas for months the buyers' eager-ness has made it. Such orders are prices. whereas for months the buyers' eager-ness has made it. Such orders are not a large factor, with most mills well sold into next year, but they are indicsold into next year, but they are indicative.

"Taking pig-iron as a measure, May was a month of high-rate production, the total being 3,351,673 tons, or 108,699 tons a day, against 3,227.788 in April, or 102,592 tons a day, and 107,807 tons a day in March, the previous high rate."

In an address before the recent New York State bankers' convention, Paul M. Warburg, member of the Federal reserve board, said that the pyramiding of reserves is still a matter of weakness in the national banking system, and cited figures showing that the posiand cited figures showing that the posi-tion of the national banks was not as strong as appeared.

Weakness in Reserve Banks.

He said, in part: "Let us consinder, as the strongest case in point, the pyramiding of reserves. I wish it had been possible to stamp out this evil within a short time after the opening of the Federal reserve system. As it is, many of the smaller banks are still in the condition of a patient who knows that he must undergo an operation in order to be fully cured, but whose mind every now and then rebels at the thought, and who continually relapses into arguing with himself that. After all, he might possibly prefer to continue to live with his disease and take his chances of the certain recurrence of acute convulsions and intense suffering rather than to have the operation performed. The country, however, has decided that the operation is necessary for our future safety and growth, and the vast majority of our bankers are in full accord that it is the wisest thing to do. The pyramiding of reserves will thus end on November 16, 1917. But, as I said, I wish the operation had already been performed.

"At present our national banks apparently have excess reserves approaching $1,00,000,000. Of these, a substantial proportion represents items in transit between the depositing and Weakness in Reserve Banks.

Of these, a substantial proportion represents items in transit between the depositing and the depository banks; the balance, excepting about $100,000,000 excess cash in vault held by all national banks outside of New York, is kept entirely in central reserve cities, the bulk being in the city of New York. There it is on deposit—drawing interest at the rate of 2 per cent—and loaned out on stock exchange and other collateral, or invested in commercial paper, except as to the required reserve of 18 per cent and the small total excess reserve of about $50,000,000. This is a reduction of excess cash reserves in New York of about $100,000. Politics so overshadowed events of the last week in the world of finance that the New York papers in their market reviews today generally agree that the slack sales of the last six days were not due to any waning of prosperity.

As it was, the really important financial news of the week came too late to show its effect on Wall Street. Everything was so uncertain that even Hughes' manifest strength on the day before his nomination and Roosevelt's "flop" to Lodge failed to mirror any startling reflection on the market.

However, financial editors of the entire Atlantic seaboard have been practically unanimous for months that, regardless of the result of the elections. "good times" are firmly established, for the time, at least.

Says the New York Sun in regard to the situation:

Political developments overshadowed the entire financial situation.

* * * * As a result trading was light. The eves of the financial district, like those of all the rest of the country, were turned toward Chicago. Aside from the developments at the Republican and Progressive conventions little attention was paid to any of the happenings. The continued Russian successes, the renewed German gairs at Verdun and the unfilled tonnage statement of the United States Steel Corporation all went practically unnoticed in Wall Street.

The New York World remarks, along the same line:

Tincertainty as to the outcome of the Chicago convention was the chief restraining inliuence in the stock market during the week and was responsible for the narrow, irregular movements therein. The public took little part, if any, in the making of values, and professional activities were confined to a few specialties.

The following rather interesting com-ment is contained in the New York Times:

Perhaps no other single influence affected business in general during the last week as much as did the weather. The most obvious result was the slackening of retail trade owing to the inclemency which kept many shoppers indoor. * *.

But this same weather factor obtruded itself into wider fields than that of garb. One of the principal of these was the matter of crops. The poor showing of both winter and spring wheat, as indicated by the Government report, may yet prove to be a serious disturber of general business, following as it does two successive seasons of large crops which aided in making the present prosperous conditions. Market has been found for the surolus of the great grain crops abroad, and there seems every reason for believing that much of those to be harvested this year will find the same outlet. Perhaps no other single influence

The New York American says:
An increase of $16.422.989 in surplus reserves and a decrease of $51.587.000 in loans in the actual bank statement complined with the nomination of thughes and Roosevelt at Chicago sent Wall Street home vesterday in a hewildered state of mind.

This news was not known, however, until after the market closed.

The hardening rates for money fore-The hardening rates for money fore-cast an improved bank statement. As there were no extraordinary de-mands for funds it was evident that the banks were simply strengthen-ing their reserves by a wholesale calling of loans and the marking up of rates that had been going on all week.

Dear Sir—I take great pleasure in recommending Walford's, 909 Pa, ave., with whom I have dealt for the past two years. Walford's in my opinion is the most prominent sporting goods store in our city. You will find them absolutely reliable in all respects.
Two things impressed me particularly in making my purchase there: The first was the accommodating and gentlemanly manner of their clerks and the second was the reasonable prices of their goods. I cheerfully advise all who may desire goods along that line to visit Walford's. Very truly yours.
